

1. Project Description

Context: Overfitting is a common problem for machine learning applications

The project aims to create a platform for taking ML code and the ML data files as inputs for running automated training. Building a continuous Machine Learning program can help with improving existing ML models. In this report, the goal is to apply the concepts of ML into building a continuous ML integration system that integrates with GitHub to run the user-defined tests.